Kim Shukla is a Professional Agrologist with a Bachelor of Science from the University of Manitoba and is currently a Principal of Prairie Global Management – an independent consulting company that provides leadership, business management and business development support in the design, evolution and delivery of agribusiness advisory and consultancy services. Kim is also Executive Director of the Canadian Hemp Trade Alliance and is co-owner and operator of a tree nursery and market garden in Steinbach, Manitoba. Kim has served as Past President of the Agricultural Institute of Canada (AIC) as well as on the Manitoba Institute of Agrologists’ Board of Director and on various committees, to name a few.

“I am pleased to be on the SAWA committee. The glass ceiling is real for women in agriculture and we need to work from the inside and the outside to rectify things. As women, we have to believe that ‘we can’, which speaks to empowerment. Secondly, we have to be prepared to do the research, as proof, and provide solutions. Finally and most importantly, we must be prepared to continue to move forward.”
